

ABSTRACT

RNA, DNA and the building blocks forming these compounds provide significant enhancement in the selectivity of a CMP slurry for removing silicon dioxide in preference to silicon nitride during chemical-mechanical polishing in the manufacture of semiconductor wafers and chips by STI.